

Women, Goddesses, and Power

This course examines representations of women, goddesses, and female power in society and politics, cosmology and mythology, literature and visual art. As mothers, wives, widows, or lovers, as consorts, fierce warriors, or the supreme divinity herself, women and goddesses represent divergent constructions and embodiments of gender and femininity. We investigate experience, negotiate, and subvert these categories.